

Russell Blocks Joint Administration Probe

Sidesteps Move To Review Military, Foreign Policies

By WILLIAM S. WHITE

Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, April 17—A Republican demand for a joint Congressional investigation of all the high military and foreign policies of the Truman administration was blocked Tuesday, temporarily at least, by Senate Democrats.

They put in a counter-proposal for an inquiry to be made by the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees, sitting jointly and under the chairmanship of Sen. Russell, Democrat, Georgia, and thus not including members of the House of Representatives.

The prospect Tuesday night was that this second alternative was likely to prevail at the end.

The certainty was that whatever type of investigation ultimately was set in motion, its point of departure would be President Truman's dismissal of General of the Army Douglas MacArthur from his Far East commands.

INQUIRY WELCOMED

A White House informant declared the Russell inquiry would be welcomed by the President. Mr. Truman was represented as confident that his stated reasons for breaking Gen. MacArthur, a refusal to accept Administration policy in Asia at what the President has asserted was the risk of provoking a third world war over China would be vindicated.

In other Truman-MacArthur developments Tuesday:

1. President Truman called off a speech scheduled for Thursday afternoon shortly after MacArthur's address at 12:30 before Congress. The President didn't want to distract from "Gen. Douglas MacArthur's day," the White House explained. Mr. Truman was to speak before the American Society of Newspaper Publishers in Washington at 2 p. m.

2. In bitter Senate debate on the controversy stemming from MacArthur's removal, Sen. Cain, Republican, Washington, introduced a resolution calling on Congress to declare war against Communist China and North Korea. Another resolution by Cain favored an "orderly withdrawal" of U. S. troops from Korea. Cain told the Senate that these are the two courses open to the United States and that one or the other should be followed.

The Senate Tuesday joined the House of Representatives in voting unanimously to hear Gen. MacArthur himself Thursday from the dais of the House chamber.

REPUBLICAN AIMS

Thus victorious in forcing an appearance by Gen. MacArthur over the head of the President and from a rostrum ordinarily reserved for heads of state, the Republicans turned at once to efforts to put under hostile review the whole world strategy of the Administration.

The Senate Republican Policy Committee, which comprises the hierarchy of the party and is headed by Sen. Robert A. Taft, of Ohio, met in the morning and prepared a concurrent resolution, requiring the action of the House and Senate alike, for an investigation by special 24-man committee. It was then introduced by Sen. Homer Ferguson, of Michigan, as an embodiment of the official Republican party position.

Twelve of the members of this panel would be from the Senate and twelve from the House. Most significant, this Republican plan was for an even partisan division—twelve Democrats and twelve Republicans.

Taking the lead for the Democrats, Sen. Russell, a foe of President Truman on dozens of occasions domestically, argued that the Republican proposal was "premature" and unnecessary.

RUSSELL WINS OUT

He recalled that the Congressional Reorganization Act of 1946 was intended, among other things, to stop the establishment of special investigative committees.

He declared, moreover, that last week, shortly after the MacArthur incident had opened, he had set out, at the request of the Republicans themselves, to hold an inquiry by the Armed Services Committee, of which he is chairman. Gen. MacArthur already has agreed to testify.

Now, Mr. Russell said, the Democrats were willing to bring the Foreign Relations Committee into the scene, but to go no farther. While he did not specifically mention this point, Democratic resistance was heavily based upon the fact that the Republican plan would knock out the ordinary edge in control that majority power has over all committee work.

The upshot was that Sen. Russell objected to immediate consideration of the Ferguson resolution and the matter was put aside.

British Bets On Cash Basis Proposed

LONDON, April 17—(AP)—A royal commission on gambling declared Tuesday there is no evidence that gambling is "a cause of crime." It proposed that Britons be permitted to bet on a cash as well as a credit basis. The commission also would lower the age for betting from 21 to 18.

Bookmaking is legal in Britain. Licensed bookies compete with the pari-mutuel windows at the big horse and dog tracks. But, as things stand now, all transactions with bookies must be on credit. Bets are laid by phone and mail. The commission's recommendation would permit persons to place bets over the counter without the necessity of opening an account.

The commission, after a two-year study, told the labor government it found no objections on moral grounds to placing a bet on the horses now and then, trying to pick football winners, or playing bridge in public for small stakes.

At the same time, it called for stricter government controls of some forms of gambling. It rejected the idea of state-operated lotteries for revenue, seeing no reason "to depart from the general principle that it is undesirable for the state to make itself responsible for the provision of gambling facilities."

Free Enterprise Only Force Russia Fears, Byrd Tells DAR

WASHINGTON, April 17—(AP)—Sen. Byrd, Democrat, Virginia, said Tuesday that America's free enterprise system is a greater deterrent to world conflict and a more dependable guardian of world peace than the United Nations will ever be.

"It is the only force in the world today that Russia fears," the Senator told the 60th annual congress of the Daughters of American Revolution. "It must be preserved."

Byrd said he is shocked and alarmed by the delusion and disunity with which this country faces what is probably its greatest crisis since Valley Forge. He said he fears the country is in more danger from disunity at home than from enemies abroad.

He said that this was one of the reasons that prompted him to urge that Gen. MacArthur, deposed by President Truman as Far Eastern commander, be invited to address Congress.

He declared that MacArthur, as a great military hero, should have the same dignified reception as was given Gen. Eisenhower on his return from Europe at the end of the last war.

"And then let us all pray that out of a free discussion may come the best solution of these grave perils that confront us," said Byrd.

Byrd, who has declared war on nondefense government spending, said "neither Democratic freedom nor the free enterprise system can survive either confiscatory taxes or overwhelming debt."

"Our worst strain in the desperate days ahead may be economic attrition at home."

"We must put Santa Claus in a deep freeze for the duration of the emergency. We cannot carry the world on our shoulders abroad and the new debt on our back at home."

During the day, the DAR unanimously passed a resolution praising Douglas MacArthur.

Truman Plans White House Bomb Shelter

WASHINGTON, April 17—(AP)—President Truman has earmarked $881,000 for construction on a bomb shelter at the White House, hearings on an appropriation bill disclosed Tuesday.

Budget Director Frederick J. Lawton said that sum was set aside from special emergency funds for construction of "protective installations" at the executive mansion.

When questioned about how many persons the shelter would hold and other details, Lawton asked and received permission to reply "off the record."

The funds are over and above the $6,500,000 previously appropriated for reconstruction and renovation of the President's house.

Previous reports have said the White House shelter is being modeled to permit better communications and a longer stay, among other improvements.

Boy Slain Viewing Cache of Whiskey

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 17—(AP)—One of two curious boys, brothers, was shot and killed as the pair inspected a bootleg whiskey cache and Tuesday a 44-year-old cripple was charged with murder.

The dead child was 13-year-old Dale Rymer, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Rymer.

Homicide Investigator Roy Clinton said John E. Pollard was being held without bond on a murder charge.

Clinton reported that Dale's brother, Gary, 11, said they found the corn whiskey in a crate about 60 feet from Pollard's home Monday, that they examined it and turned to leave.

At that moment, Clinton continued, Gary told him a shot rang out. Dale dropped and he saw Pollard aiming the gun in their direction.

Clinton quoted Pollard as saying he was cleaning his .22-caliber rifle when it discharged accidentally. Pollard denied knowledge of the whiskey, the officer said.

2 QUIT SCHOOL

Mrs. Atwood said she and her husband and son pumped sand "on halves" for A. W. Reese. None of them can swim. She said both Patsy and Howard had to quit school at 16 to help at home. While she talked, the other children busied themselves around the house, preparing to go to the homes of relatives until after the funeral. Barrett Funeral Home in Riverside will be in charge of funeral arrangements.

Della May, nine, and Mary, 11, collected scraps from the neighbors for two pigs they are fattening for the family's meat supply.

COULDN'T BUY MILK

The boys, Howard, Johnny, 14, and William, eight, went with a neighbor to get their grandmother. "All our children have to do for themselves and each other," the mother said. "We had a big family and their Daddy was crazy about every last one of them and was always hoping to do better for them in the way of schooling and a living. We had plenty, such as it was. I never could buy milk for them and it's lucky they didn't want eggs. But we've had enough, such as it was. Now . . . now I don't know what'll become of us." The other Atwood children include Ellen, four, and Brenda, seven. Three others are dead.

'Voice' To Give Series Of Anti-Red Plays

WASHINGTON, April 17—(AP)—The State Department reported Tuesday it has started a series of broadcasts of a radio play, "Darkness at Noon," based on Arthur Koestler's novel on the 1937 Moscow purge trials.

The play is anti-Communist. The Voice of America began the series with a one-hour presentation Saturday. It will be repeated later in a score of foreign language transmissions.

Urge WSB Have Voice In Disputes

New Board Asked With 18 Members

By JOSEPH A. LOFTUS

WASHINGTON, April 17—President Truman's national advisory board on mobilization policy, by a 12-to-4 vote, advised the President Tuesday to set up a new Wage Stabilization Board with the right to make recommendations in disputes which substantially threaten national defense.

The four members from industry cast the "no" votes. The public, agriculture, and labor members stood together.

The new wage board would be tripartite, with six members representing the public, six representing labor, and six representing management. Labor two months ago quit a nine-man board similarly constituted, protesting a 10 percent limit on wage increases adopted by the public and industry members. The old board's power was limited to recommendations on wage policy. It had no authority to consider non-wage disputes, such as the proposed new board would have.

PRESIDENT SILENT

Whether President Truman will follow the advisory group's advice was the next question and the White House was not prepared to answer it Tuesday night.

The President has had conflicting advice as to the legality of setting up of a board to handle non-wage cases in the absence of an agreement by industry. There is no doubt about its right to interpret its own wage regulations. Three of the four public members of the advisory group supporting Tuesday's recommendation are lawyers. One of them, William H. Davis, of New York, said "I personally haven't any doubt it is a legal thing to do." Earl Porter, of Washington, expressed a similar opinion.

BOARD'S OKAY SEEN

It is Davis's opinion that the President has a right to seek advice from any source he chooses and that the President would be doing only what when he referred disputes to a wage board. The board would have no enforcement power of its own.

Whether that rationale will make any difference to the Justice Department remains to be seen. It previously had advised the President that a labor-management was necessary to set up a disputes board.

The board under contemplation then would have powers of final decision. Under Tuesday's proposal, the board would issue binding orders only when both parties to a dispute agreed in advance to refer their dispute for that kind of decision.

GRADY HOSPITAL ROUNDUP

Textile Foreman Crushed To Death in E. Point Mill

An East Point textile worker was crushed to death between spiked rollers Tuesday, police said. A variety of accidents elsewhere sent 15 persons to Grady Hospital.

Charles Williams, 55, foreman of the picker room at the Piedmont Cotton Mills, was attempting to clear a picker roller, East Point Dets. W. B. Cawthon and H. L. Stanley said. Detectives said

Williams' left leg was caught in the spikes on the roller and he was drawn between two giant spike rollers.

Fred Phillips, Negro employee at the mill, stood helplessly by, detectives said.

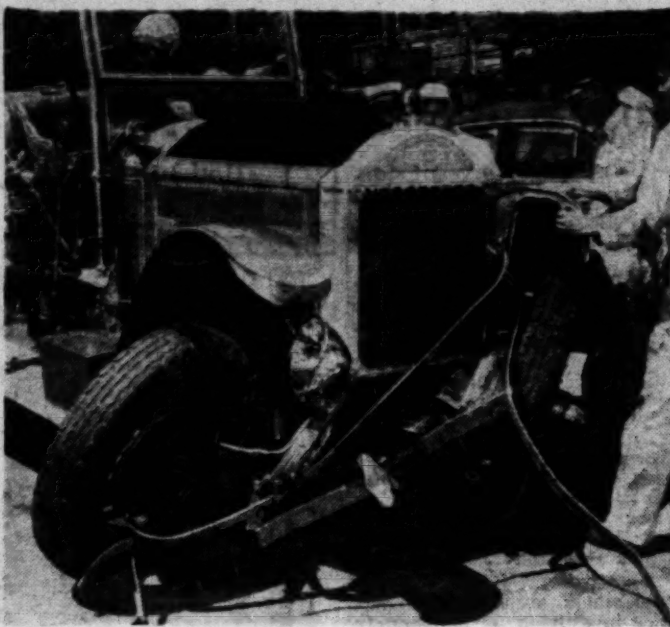

FUNERAL TODAY
Funeral services for Mr. Williams will be held at 4 p. m. Wednesday at the Harrison Road Baptist Church with the Rev. H. W. Morris officiating. Interment will be in College Park Cemetery.

He is survived by his wife, four sons, Pfc. Hubert A. Williams, USMC, of Jacksonville, Fla.; Pfc. Horace E. Williams, USA, in Germany, and Roy E. and Lonnie Albert Williams, both of Hapeville; three daughters, Mrs. G. O. Guest, of Atlanta; Mrs. D. A. Burdine, of Stone Mountain; and Mrs. Grace Finch, of East Point; four sisters, Mrs. J. H. Hillyer, Mrs. L. P. Rades and Mrs. Anna Black, all of East Point, and Mrs. A. J. Dooley, of Fairburn; and nine grandchildren.

Three persons were injured, two seriously, when a fire department truck was involved in a three-way accident at Memorial Drive and Moreland Ave. Sgt. Roy Etheridge and Ptl. P. E. Edwards said Olin Smith, 43, and his wife, Mrs. Beattie Smith, 32, of Route 3, were admitted to Grady with possible fractured necks.

Their two-year-old son, James Russell Smith, was treated for bruises about the head.

TWO DRIVERS BOOKED
The fire truck, driven north on Moreland by Winfred C. Barnett, 31, of 2717 Knox St., was answering a call to Flora Avenue and the Georgia Railroad, officers related. An auto driven east on Memorial by Charlie L. Newton, 62, of Dothan, Ala., pulled in front of the fire truck, officers said, and the truck swerved into a third machine occupied by the Smiths. Newton and Barnett were booked for failure to yield the right-of-way and accident.

Two pedestrians were injured. Sgt. E. T. Tumlin and Ptl. C. L. Huddleston said Mrs. E. Robillard, 23, of 1995 Manchester Rd., N. E., was slightly injured when struck by a truck on Piedmont Ave. near Rock Springs Rd., N. E. Roy L. Scoggins, 28, of Marietta, the driver, was booked for violating pedestrian rights and improper brakes.

Struck by a car in front of 66 Baker St., N. W., Carl Adams, four, of 66 Baker St., N. W., was admitted to Grady with a possible fractured skull. Tumlin and Huddleston said the child ran from behind a parked car into the path of a machine operated by D. L. Hill, 25, of 646 Hemphill Ave., N. W.

TREATED FOR BRUISES
Mrs. Hilda Prudence Johnston, 31, and Mrs. Eleanor Worrell Ray, 50, of Route 1, Ben Hill, co-owners of the Sky-Ranch Nursing Home, were treated for bruises after an auto accident on Campbellton Rd., Fulton County police said.

Lloyd Ronnie Wilson, five, of Route 1, Stone Mountain, sustained a head injury when he fell from a moving auto near Redan, DeKalb County police said.

Mrs. Sadie Judith Thorpe, 77, of 1266 McLendon Ave., N. E., tripped over an uneven place in the sidewalk near her home and fell, breaking her right wrist, Ptl. H. M. Kersey said G. L. McGraw said. She was treated at Grady and transferred to Crawford W. Long Hospital.

Duncan N. Caldwell, 33, of 5113 Stokes Ave., S. W., manager of an Economy Auto Store on Bankhead Ave., N. W., had an index finger cut off with a power saw, hospital records showed. Ernest B. Holt, 63, of 199 Degress Ave., N. E., employee at the Atlanta Joint Terminals, fell against a cabinet, receiving a head injury.

Jesse Earl Millwood, 15, of 112 Little St., S. W., rode his bicycle against an open car door, sustaining a neck injury. Sarah Irene Russell, nine, of 902 Washington St., S. W., had a dog bite wound on the leg.

Rock Springs PTA Officers Quit in Row

Nine outgoing and six officers-elect of the new Rock Springs Elementary School's Parent-Teacher Association resigned Tuesday night because of an alleged lack of co-operation from the school's principal, Mrs. Tillou Forbes.

Their resignations, submitted in written form at a regular meeting of the PTA group, read: "We, the undersigned members of the Rock Springs PTA, after careful consideration and study and being duly aware of the aims, objects and policies of the PTA, as completely understood, realizing the responsibility of the principal for contributing to the co-operative endeavor of the school and school community, hereby resign from the indicated offices, effective April 18."

Resigning officers declined to say specifically in what way they felt Mrs. Forbes has been unco-operative. Mrs. Forbes, who attended the meeting, refused to comment. The school is located on Lindbergh Dr., N. E., near the Lindmont Apartment area.

Contacted by phone after the meeting, Fulton County School Supt. Paul D. West revealed five husbands of PTA members at the school called at his office recently and request removal of Principal Forbes on grounds she was "unco-operative." He said they refused to be more specific.

Later, West said, he received numerous telephone calls from other PTA members supporting Mrs. Forbes. He said he has invited both groups to appear in his office and air their opinions at their convenience.

Outgoing officers resigning Tuesday night prior to normal expiration of their terms at the group's next meeting included: Mrs. Joel T. Howell, president; D. C. Ellis, second vice president; Mrs. W. J. Delaney, Jr., recording secretary; Mrs. Dan Plaster, historian; Mrs. G. L. Dickson, building and finance chairman; Mrs. Charles B. Hinton, chairman program committee; G. R. Dickson, chairman recreation committee; Joel T. Howell, chairman safety committee, and James H. Mayo, co-chairman safety committee.

Officers-elect who submitted resignations were Mrs. John C. Blevins, parliamentarian-elect; Mrs. E. R. Williamson, corresponding secretary-elect; Mrs. Lester L. Allen, secretary-elect; Mrs. R. L. Smith, treasurer-elect; Mrs. T. P. Blakely, second vice president-elect, and Mrs. W. R. Smart, historian-elect.

Septic Tank Topic Aired In Hapeville

Hapeville citizens Tuesday night pressed Hapeville City Council for immediate action to relieve what they termed "a deplorable and deadly situation" of overflowing septic tanks where they said city officials had promised sewage systems more than a year ago.

A spokesman for the group from a GI housing development on Moreland Way, H. C. Pickens, said Hapeville officials are "building a sewer on a street they want paved in preference to giving us sewage disposal" while sewage "is running in our yards, in our streets, and endangering our lives and the lives of our children."

Mayor Rex T. Reeves denied Pickens' charge that he had promised the 110 homes sewage service two weeks ago "by this time." City Engineer Willie B. Adams, however, promised the 20 Hapeville protesters that "it will not be more than three weeks before we get the machinery down there."

Mayor Reeves told the citizens his septic tank ran over, too, and assured them they would get sewage service before he did.

In other actions, council moved to authorize immediate transcription and publication of Hapeville laws; voted 3-2 to order traffic light systems for the Stewart Ave., Fulton Ave., and Atlanta Ave. intersections with Central Ave. in Hapeville; set a meeting for 2:30 p. m. Saturday to set up a budget for the city; voted to advertise for qualified personnel to operate the city's swimming pool during the Summer.

The move to set up a city budget was termed one of "harmony" by Mayor Reeves, who asked the members to prepare themselves for "closer supervision of city affairs" in the departments, "thinking toward something like a city manager but without full power over the whole city." Reeves said he believed Hapeville could save between $25,000 and $75,000 a year with closer fiscal supervision.

27 Miles of Expressway By 1955, Cox Predicts

Col. Mose Cox, engineer for the joint Atlanta-Fulton County Bond Commission, Tuesday night said 27 miles of metropolitan Atlanta's Expressway system costing $48,000,000 can be completed by 1955.

Speaking before a group of traffic experts and civic leaders at a dinner at the Capital City Club at which Richard H. Rich, member of the City Traffic Commission, was host, Cox emphasized that the completion schedule depends on sufficient funds to proceed uninterruptedly.

Representatives of the City Traffic Commission, the Greater Atlanta Traffic Improvement Association, the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, the Central Atlanta Improvement Association, the Metropolitan Planning Commission, and the joint Atlanta-Fulton County Bond Commission attended.

The group decided to restudy needs and to submit a report at a future meeting which will be called by Francis Kraft, of the Greater Atlanta Traffic Improvement Association, and Karl Bevin, City Traffic engineer.

SPEED STRESSED

Rich and others stressed the importance of moving as rapidly as possible, but said they want to be sure the plans are thoroughly worked out and that sound engineering principles are considered.

Cox made a progress report which showed that 10.5 miles of the system costing $22,000,000 already has been completed or are under contract. The State and Federal governments have contributed more than $12,000,000, he added.

He said an additional $4,500,000 in 1946 bond funds has been allocated to another seven miles of the system and that it will be finished by Jan., 1954. Included in this group is the northeast leg extending from Brookwood Station to Buford Highway.

Plans are now being perfected for the two-mile long connector for the north-south legs and it will cost $8,000,000, Cox added.

Other projects in the planning stage, and for which sufficient funds are not yet in sight, include the four-mile long west leg, costing $7,500,000 and extending from Howell Mill to Paces Ferry Road; the four-mile long Municipal airport leg which will cost another $2,500,000 and will extend from Cleveland Avenue south of College Park and connect with U. S. Highway No. 29.

OTHER MEASURES

Those attending the meeting agreed that the Expressway system is imperative to deal with the progressively increasing traffic load, but they concurred with Bevin that off-street parking, improvement of traffic control systems, improvement of surface streets, improved facilities for pedestrian movement, and other facilities are mandatory to relieve congestion and provide for freer and faster vehicular movement.

Robert L. MacDougall, member of the Bond Commission; W. E. Mitchell, of the Traffic Association, and all other engineers present warned that the work must consider good engineering practices in the closing of streets or movement will be paralyzed. The laymen agreed, but insisted that the work proceed as rapidly as possible.

PROGRESS CITED

Mitchell contended that the Expressway system is well planned and is progressing.

Robert Snodgrass, former president of the Traffic Association, urged the group to get its "teeth into the problem and solve it." He emphasized the importance of sufficient off-street parking facilities.

Bevin said a study to provide parking already is under way and recommendations will be ready by mid-summer.

Cradle Root Of Marriage

A divorce doesn't start when hubby sits down to his first platter of burned biscuits.

Divorces — and happy marriages — have their beginnings in the childhood of every couple taking the marriage vows.

Dr. Pauline Park Wilson, dean of the Home Economics School at the University of Georgia, declared here Tuesday night.

She told the Atlanta Mental Hygiene Society, "You don't start planning your marriage the day you pick out the engagement ring. You prepare for marriage all your life, and it's being planned for

Association Asks State Zoning Law

Commissioners Close Convention

By M. L. ST. JOHN
SAVANNAH, April 17—A uniform zoning law throughout the State, which would make unnecessary special local zoning acts in the future, was asked by the Association of Georgia County Commissioners in the closing session of their annual convention here Tuesday.

The commissioners pledged themselves to fight any further legislation "nibbling" at their revenues without providing additional sources of income for their operation. They renewed their fight to pass legislation requiring motorists to show auto property tax receipts before being issued a license plate, called for strict enforcement of load limits on buses and trucks, and pledged their support to a constitutional amendment earmarking gasoline taxes for roads.

SOLOMON ELECTED
Judge Arthur Solomon, Chatham County Commissioner for more than 30 years, was elevated to the presidency of the association, succeeding W. H. Johnston, of Palmetto.

Fred W. Hodges, of Statesboro, was elevated to first vice president; Frank Smith, of Clayton, to second vice president, and Calder Clay, of Macon, was named third vice president.

Dr. W. A. Blasingame, of Moultrie, was elected on the Board of Managers from the Second District, replacing Turner Brice, of Quitman, who is in ill health. Kenneth Dunwoody, of Macon, was named successor to Calder Clay as the Sixth District member of the board.

NEW PRESIDENT

Fulton County Commissioner Jim Aldredge was re-named representative from the Fifth District. Others re-elected were: W. H. Larisey, of Sylvester, First District; Dr. L. E. Williams, of Cordele, Third District; Eugene Hall, of LaGrange, Fourth District; C. G. Kirkland, of Rome, Seventh District; N. E. Holton, of Douglas, Eighth District; R. W. Acree, of Toccoa, Ninth District; and J. D. Baston, of Thomson, Tenth District.

HAND SPEAKS

House Speaker Fred Hand, pinch-hitting for Gov. Talmadge, whom he said was ill with a severe cold, expressed the hope that every county in Georgia will have health services soon. He said that 24 counties still do not have public health services. Hand said the counties today are in better financial shape than they have ever been before, and attributed this to the sympathetic understanding and aid they are receiving from the present state administration.

Speaking on civilian defense, Arj. Gen. Ernest Vandiver, Jr., said: "For better, for worse, whether we like it or not, for the rest of our lives we live with the modern version of the sword of Damocles—the atomic bomb—suspended over our heads. We must accustom ourselves to a new way of life, where survival depends not merely upon military preparedness, but upon the readiness of every able-bodied citizen to participate wholeheartedly in the defense of his life, the life of his family, his community and his country."

The Board of Managers was authorized to select next year's convention city.

POLICE BLOTTER

By KEELER McCARTNEY

Traffic Judge Paul Bynum Tuesday assessed fines totaling $259 on multiple charges against Miss Willene Foster, 24, of 1235 Lee St., S. W., in connection with a three-way auto accident at Lee Street and Poole Place, S. W.

Bynum also placed fines totaling $206 against James R. Payton, 28, of Sunnyside, who, police charged, suggested Miss Foster drive away after the accident.

An auto driven by Miss Foster entered Lee Street from Poole Place and struck a second machine operated by Keith A. Quaterman, Jr., 20, of 185 Huntington Rd., N. W., Sgt. G. L. Newton and Ptl. T. R. Reid said. Officers said Quaterman's auto overturned against a third driven by Mrs. Jean Stone Morris, 24, of Chamblee.

Miss Foster was arrested 15 minutes later when she returned to the scene of the accident, officers said. Bynum assessed a $153 fine for occupying the driver's seat while intoxicated; $53 for speeding 40 miles per hour, and $53 for leaving the scene of an accident.

Payton arrested when he drove to the scene of the accident in a pickup truck, was fined $153 for occupying the driver's seat while intoxicated and $53 for disorderly conduct-aiding and abetting.

Recorder A. W. Callaway assessed a $28 fine against Cohen as operator of the pharmacy and a similar fine, suspended, against Williams.

Recital Here Is Hailed By Audience

By HOWELL JONES

Decatur composer Arthur Curry shared the spotlight with Rudolf Kratina and Julia Schnebly Tuesday night as the two artists presented the premiere performance of his "Sonatina for Cello and Piano" at the Atlanta Division of the University of Georgia.

A large audience gave Curry, who moved here in 1948 from Boston, a mighty ovation following the playing of his composition. The score, dedicated to Kratina, was written last year.

Playing of the Curry work was the highlight of a sonata recital featuring Cellist Kratina and Pianist Schnebly, presented by the Music Department of the Atlanta Division.

Playing together for the first time, the two artists gave outstanding interpretations of two other works, one by Edward Grieg and the other by contemporary composer Howard R. Thatcher. Thatcher's work, "Sonatina for Cello and Piano," was written in August, 1950. Its three movement structure was highlighted by a beautifully lyrical second movement.

The Grieg "Sonata for Cello and Piano, Opus 36," which concluded the program, was more of a display piece for piano than the cello, although the players were in accord throughout.

Gables Have 'Spat,' Studio Reports

HOLLYWOOD, April 17.—(AP)—Clark Gable's studio said Tuesday the handsome actor and his wife "have had marital spat," but it probably won't result in a separation.

Gable returned Tuesday from a trip he made alone to Arizona, and a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer spokesman said he met with his wife, the former Lady Sylvia Ashley, to discuss their problems.

Rumors of a separation had been heard here since Gable left for Arizona some time ago "to practice riding for a new picture."

Gable, longtime king of the Hollywood leading men, and the former Lady Ashley were married in a surprise ceremony at Santa Barbara, Cal., in December, 1949. It was the fourth marriage for each.

Mississippi On Rampage In 4 States

By the Associated Press
Hundreds of families fled their homes in the path of the rising upper Mississippi Tuesday. Downstream emergency preparations were made for the arrival of the crest there.

At Prairie Du Chien, Wis., in the southwestern corner of the state, the evacuation job was finished. One hundred eighteen families were moved. One-third of the 5,000 population city was covered with four to five feet of water.

Upstream at La Crosse, Wis., 30 city blocks were covered with water and the crest is not expected there until Thursday.

first of the party to leave the plane. MacArthur followed her immediately, to more wild cheering. His 13-year-old son, Arthur, was third to leave the plane. Then came members of the former supreme commander's official party. The three-star flag of Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, commander of the Sixth Army, was carried to the plane as the former China-Burma-India theater commander stepped forward to greet the party. Dignitaries milled thickly as they pressed forward to shake MacArthur's hand. Mrs. MacArthur was wearing a lavender dress. Camera men's flashbulbs popped like twinkling stars. A color guard sprang to attention as MacArthur emerged from the milling throng with Gov. Earl Warren on his left arm and Wedemeyer on his right. As they approached the colors, MacArthur stopped abruptly and saluted. The others pulled up sharply behind him. The General posed briefly for photographers—a wide grin on his face. Then he walked slowly in front of the honor guard. Warren and Wedemeyer followed a pace behind.

MacArthur's own five-star flag of the General of the Army was unfurled and carried high a few paces behind him. MacArthur strode back in front of the honor guard, pausing for a moment to inspect one of the erect soldiers. The crowd pressed so closely to the General that his progress was slowed somewhat. The crowd moved along, trying to keep pace. There was a sprinkling of Orientals. One Chinese woman wore a brightly colored mandarin coat. MacArthur plainly was enjoying every moment of the tumultuous welcome. He waved briskly. He was wearing his familiar gold-braid cap and regulation overcoat. Each time the General turned to the crowd and smiled, another roar went up. After reviewing the honor guard, MacArthur mounted the platform for a brief official welcome from Mayor Elmer E. Robinson, Governor Warren and dignitaries. "I can't tell you how good it is to be home," said MacArthur. "During these long years Mrs. MacArthur and myself have talked and thought about it. 'This is marvelous hospitality and a reception that we will not forget.' The crowd broke through the lines in a virtual mob scene to follow MacArthur on his inspection of the honor guard. Officers

Acheson Doesn't Look For Speech Clearance

WASHINGTON, April 17. (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Acheson said Tuesday he doubts that Gen. Douglas MacArthur will ask the State Department to clear his speech to Congress Thursday. Earlier, Presidential Press Secretary Joe Short told newsmen he didn't know whether President Truman's Dec. 8 directive requiring advance clearance of policy statements with the State and Defense Departments would apply to MacArthur's speech.

and friends of MacArthur's formed a protective ring about Mrs. MacArthur and Arthur. The boy, bareheaded and wide-eyed, watching this scene, was held tightly in the arms of Lt. Col. Anthony Story, the General's personal pilot.

Story and the group kept the crowd from pressing in on the MacArthurs and crushing them. Someone asked Arthur how it felt to be home and he said: "It feels fine." There were several "MacArthur for President" signs in the crowd. A seven-year-old South Korean girl, dressed in yellow and red costume of her country, handed Mrs. MacArthur a huge bouquet of American Beauty roses. Mrs. MacArthur cradled the flowers in her arms as she watched the welcoming scene, tears in her eyes.

"It's simply wonderful," she said. "It's simply wonderful" for both Arthur and me. "We have looked forward to this." MacArthur's march before the honor guard was a riotous scene. Newsmen and photographers and civilians swarmed around him, made the inspection almost a running mob scene.

There was a momentary pause while MacArthur chose between riding in a 1951 Cadillac sedan, or a 1931 open Lincoln phaeton which had carried San Francisco's biggest dignitaries for 20 years. The general chose the closed car and driver John Shannon of the San Francisco mayor's office moved it forward to receive the general.

Shannon is national junior vice commander of the Disabled American Veterans. Mrs. MacArthur and Arthur got into the sedan with the general. They left the airport for San Francisco—15 miles away—at 8:54 p. m. (11:54 p. m. E.S.T.)

Trailing them was a procession of thousands of cars. Floodlights were taken off the Bataan and the crowd slowly began to disperse.

MacArthur was home. Crowds began gathering at the airport before 6 p. m. By 7 o'clock spectators were more than five deep around the wire fence at the edge of the ramp where the General's plane, the Bataan, was to stop. Many mothers carried children in their arms.

An honor guard of military police from the Presidio of San Francisco, Hamilton Field Air Base, the San Mateo County sheriff's posse, the California State Highway Patrol and the San Francisco police force was drawn up around the welcoming platform and in an aisle down to the unloading ramp.

An hour before the Bataan's arrival, Mayor Robinson's office announced that nearly 250,000 persons were gathered at the airport, at the St. Francis Hotel, where the General's party will stay tonight, and along the route which will be traversed from the airfield.

The crowd at the airport included literally hundreds of newspaper, movie and television cameramen, broadcasters and reporters. Television cameras and floodlights were set up even on the roof of the airport administration building, in hopes of catching the plane as it taxied in from the runway.

LEAVES HAWAII MacArthur, jauntily swinging a red flower lei from his left arm, took off from Honolulu at 9:30 a. m. Tuesday (2:30 p. m. EST). Asked if he had any farewell remarks, MacArthur genially responded: "The welcome of Honolulu is heartwarming and marvelous in every way. On behalf of Mrs. MacArthur and all the others in our party, I want to thank you. We will not forget."

"When we meet again I hope Hawaii will be a far-blown state of our beloved country, Aloha!" The onlookers cheered and applauded. MacArthur, the last passenger to board the plane, turned at the door and waved.

has recommended has supported United Nations unity in the conduct of the war."

NO QUICK END SEEN Bradley, whose five-star rank equals MacArthur's, spoke at a luncheon naming the National Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters. His address presumably had been cleared by the State Department. This is required procedure under the President's order of last December, which MacArthur was accused of violating in his public statements.

Asserting that "there is no early end in sight to the Korean war under present conditions," Bradley added: "Any recommended course of action which would enlarge the present war is contrary to our best interest, and by jeopardizing world peace, ultimately would threaten our security."

Bradley said that withdrawal of UN troops from Korea after the Chinese Reds entered the conflict last fall "would have dealt a tragic blow to the hopes of free men everywhere for peace."

SAYS KREMLIN FRUSTRATED "We may strive for peace, and a cessation of hostilities, but while so doing we must continue to fight," he added. The "outstanding military job" being done by UN troops in Korea, he went on, has disarranged the "Kremlin-dominated Communists' plans for Asia," and "slowed down (Communist) plans for world domination." In addition, he declared, UN action in Korea may have saved, at least temporarily, Indochina, Thailand and Formosa from aggression.

Bradley emphasized that "our military action in Korea is closely related to our North Atlantic treaty efforts in Europe."

"The same guiding principles govern our actions there," he said. "We joined in the North Atlantic pact as a collective defense effort for mutual security. In collective action we multiply our defensive strength."

Contino Faces Charges of Draft Evasion

LOS ANGELES, April 17.—(AP)—Attorney Gerald Kales said Tuesday night he will surrender accor-dionist Dick Contino to Federal authorities Wednesday morning. Contino, 20, who vanished on the eve of his induction into the Army, faces charges of draft evasion.

Kales said the information that Contino would surrender came from "a member of the family," whom he declined to identify. The lawyer said he does not have "the faintest idea" where the $4,000-a-week musician is now.

A Selective Service spokesman disclosed that Contino had submitted reports from three psychiatrists that he is suffering from certain phobias. Nevertheless, he was ordered to Ft. Ord, near Monterey, Calif., last week. He disappeared from there Friday.

The Los Angeles Mirror said Friday that Contino is in a sanitarium in Southern California. It wouldn't say where.

TV Actress Cited for Role In Celestine Sibley Story

By HOWELL JONES

Ethel Everett, television actress who starred as Constitution Reporter Celestine Sibley on a "Big Story" program several weeks ago, has been honored for her portrayal.

THE NBC-TV crewmen, recognizing the show, she admitted, however, she thought Miss Everett was a very nice person.

Now that Atlanta's annual opera season is almost upon us, the city's interest in reaching for the stars is reaching fever pitch, but there's little likelihood that a classic planned for the "Four-Star Review" at 8 p. m. over WSB-TV will further that interest to a noticeable degree.

What should never happen to Bissett, "Carmen" is going to happen, Ed Wynn will give his "interpretation" of the opera, regarded as one of the most popular in operatic repertory.

To offset this, however, tenor Lauritz Melchior will give his version of "I Pagliacci" to highlight the show.

Also slated for guest appearances are Richard Himber, band-leader-magician; Smith and Dale, old-time vaudeville greats; the Paul Steffen dancers, and actress Gene Courtney.

"THE DREAM," a story of a dream within a dream, will be the dramatic offering on "The Web," at 9:30 p. m. on WAGA-TV. Wesley Addy, Judith Parrish and Lawrence Fletcher will play the leading roles with Nan McFarland, Eduardo Riquelme and Ben Laughlin in the supporting cast.

The drama, written by Saret Rudley, portrays the baleful influence of a portrait of a laughing woman painted by an insane artist.

This being Cancer Month, Mr. District Attorney appropriately examines the case of a quack medicine who builds up a huge practice by diagnosing all ailments as cancer and claims to have found an exclusive "cure." The show will be heard at 9:30 p. m. on WSB-radio.

With assistance from Harrington and Miss Miller, Mr. D. A. exposes the quack and halts the false treatments and their attendant evils.

Television newscaster Jimmy Bridges will interview Dr. Robert Brown, of Winship Clinic at Emory University at 6:45 p. m. on WSB-TV. The newsmen will talk to Dr. Brown on the current American Cancer Society fund campaign.

Eight youngsters are listed as contestants on the Woody Willow amateur contest at 4:30 p. m. on WSB-TV. They are Loraine Freley, 9; Julianne Shartzer, 11; Anne and Don Rush—she's 8 and he's 11—Alan Jackson, 13; Jackie Rogers, 12; Shirley Hanson and Harlene Colie, both 8.

A 10-round boxing bout, bringing together two of the nation's top welterweights, will be broadcast over WAGA-TV at 10 p. m. The bout, staged at Olympia Stadium, Detroit, will feature Johnny Bratton against Don Williams in a non-title fight.

Lisa Kirk will star in "Yours Truly," a comedy, on Television Theater at 9 p. m. on WSB-TV. The play concerns a young actress who can't make up her mind which man she wants to marry: her former husband, a poor newspaperman, or a rich oil man.

A thrilling $4,750 will be at stake when contestants face Bert Parks on "Break the Bank" at 10 p. m. on WSB-TV. Patricia Munsel, Met soprano, will be crowned "Queen of Laces" by Kate Smith on Kate's 12:15 p. m. show on WSB-TV. . . . The "Case of the Beautiful Brunette" will be solved by "Charlie Wild, Private Detective," at 9 p. m. on WAGA-TV, and the Rev. Ralph Byrd, pastor of the Ponce de Leon Assembly of God Church, will be the guest minister on WSB-TV's Morning Devotions program at 10:30 a. m.

ON THE AM DIAL — Ronald Colman and his wife have literary troubles on "Halls of Ivy" at 8 p. m. on WSB-radio when objection is raised to the Athenaeum Club's choice of a school play.

Baritone Jack Haskell opens another session of small talk and big music with "Don't Bring Lulu" on Dial Dave Garroway at 11:45 a. m. on WSB-radio, and Grocho Marx subjects more contestants to blistering humor and stiff questions on "You Bet Your Life" at 9 p. m. on WSB-radio.

The fear of cowardice leads to the unhappiness of a man and his wife until "Dr. Christian" proves that courage is an unknown quantity within ourselves, at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday on WAGA-radio. Mr. Chameleon investigates "The Mother's Love Case," at 8 p. m. on WAGA-radio, and Gary Crosby returns for another visit with his famous father, Bing, at 9:30 p. m. on WAGA-radio.

The Philadelphia Phillies and the Brooklyn Dodgers tangle in the major league game broadcast over WBGE at 1:25 p. m.

Penicillin Treatments Aid Eagle Victory, 9-6

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

But for that wonder drug, penicillin, Boots Payne's Murphy Eagles would not be tied for the City League baseball leadership with Smith High Wednesday morning.

A school nurse sent Don Henderson and Louis Gary home from school Tuesday morning with "mumps." Tuesday afternoon Henderson clouted three singles in three trips, scored one run and batted in three to lead the Eagles to a 9-6 triumph over O'Keefe at Kirkwood Park. Gary crashed a single, scored a run and batted in another.

There is small doubt that a doctor literally needed the Murphys to their victory. The doctor said the boys had infected throats, not mumps. He gave both a shot of penicillin. Their fever disappeared. Don said, "Go on out and play." They did, and well.

Colvin Heist fanned eight, walked one and twirled a seven-hitter for the triumph. He also cracked two singles. Sammy Quinn banged two safeties and Frank Reeves a double for O'Keefe. Five O'Keefe errors hurt the cause of pitcher Jimmy Nisevonger.

Gerald Fowler, who previously had hurled one and four-hitters, let Brown down with three socks in flinging Smith to a 6-3 verdict at John A. White field. Reginald Ballard and Lamar Smith lined out two safe blows apiece for Smith.

Tom Wood and Chris Sanson powered a 17-hit foray that sped Bass to a 17-10 victory over Grady at Piedmont Park. Each belted four safe ones, one of Sanson's being a double. Cotton McMullen propelled a homer. Grady's Bobby Paller slashed two safeties that knocked across five runs, and Don Gardiner and Billy Caswell also had two hits.

Russell Wells' four-run round tripper and Richard Epps' two-run homer were the blows that stashed away an 8-6 triumph for Roosevelt over Sylvan at Roosevelt. Wells and Epps along with Sylvan's Stan Cochran bagged two safeties each. Pitcher Tommy Crowe and Charlie Corley pelted a double apiece for the Bears.

Much Depends on the General's Speech

WASHINGTON—Gen. Douglas MacArthur returns to the United States today after an absence of 14 years. He comes home to a nation badly and emotionally divided over the issue of the President's action in relieving him of command for opposing the Government's foreign policy.

Public opinion slowly is swinging more and more to the President in so far as the necessity for the removal is concerned. The influential New York Times threw its weight on this side in its lead editorial of Tuesday.

It said: "In this controversy this newspaper has taken an unequivocal stand in favor of the Government and against Gen. MacArthur. It has done so for three reasons:

"First, we believe that President Truman is right in asserting the supremacy of the civil government over any military authority giving the appearance of challenging this supremacy.

"Second, we believe that present circumstances dictate a policy of trying to limit the war to Korea in an effort to avert a new world war, rather than taking the risk of precipitating such a war and splitting both the United Nations and the Atlantic alliance by extending the Korean hostilities to China, as Gen. MacArthur urges.

"Finally, and in contrast to Gen. MacArthur, we believe that now, as during the last war, our first front and primary concern must be Europe, and that Asia is a second front which should be held as effectively as possible, but without sacrificing the defense of the Atlantic community.

That position is the sound one and the only one a thoughtful citizen can take.

But, nothing can close the Pandora's box opened by the removal of Gen. MacArthur.

If we were not on the eve of a political year, we could feel with some assurance that this controversy would have a healthy effect. It may yet do so. But its chances are greatly lessened because of the fact that the choosing up of sides has already begun and presumably Gen. MacArthur is going to enter the political field.

Thus, the net effect is likely to be political, when what we desperately need is full unity behind a bipartisan foreign policy. That now is impossible. We likely are to have a full-dress examination of foreign policy. The effect of this on Europe, where Gen. Eisenhower is now trying to create an army for the defense of that critical area, may well mean disaster.

Gen. MacArthur is committed to Asia as the theater where action against Communism must be greatest. He will carry with him many of the Republicans and a few Democrats. This division may cause the Russians to hurry their action against Yugoslavia. There are increasing signs of trouble there.

That we should lose the bipartisan front now is a grievously bad piece of luck. It will bring doubt and consternation to European countries. It will step up the activities of Communist parties there. It may lose us Europe and leave us with the vast, unorganized stretches of Asia. That Gen. MacArthur should regard Asia as the primary front is astonishing and regrettable.

Much depends upon the tone of his Thursday speech. It is to be hoped he understands it is not merely a celebration to honor him, but one in which the nation can be split even more widely and the Atlantic Pact wrecked. —R. M.

A Welcome to the Georgia PTA

Today's secret weapon to insure peace and freedom for all is the citizen child. This is the timely theme of the 136,567 members of the Georgia Congress of Parents and Teachers meeting in Atlanta today in its 37th annual convention.

It is gratifying to note that the convention will assemble many fathers along with the mothers who have always been the bulwark of PTA work. This year there are 25 men serving as PTA presidents in Georgia as compared to only five in 1950. That the menfolk are being more and more recognized as "parents" is evidenced, too, by the fact that top speakers on the three-day program are men.

Georgia takes especial pride in the Parent-Teacher movement.

It was Marietta-born Alice McLellan Birney, working with Mrs. Phoebe Hearst, who founded the Mothers Congress which has become the PTA.

We welcome to Atlanta the parents and teachers who represent the PTA in Georgia. We wish them well as they work toward a great objective—developing a new generation adequately trained to handle the problem on which this generation thus far has failed—the attainment of universal peace.

But the responsibility for that task, of making each generation better than the one before, is not that of parents and educators alone. As Alice Birney pointed out, it rests with all humanity.

A Signal Honor for Dr. Dan Elkin

When the American Surgical Association met in Washington last week, Dr. Daniel C. Elkin, chairman of the Board of Surgery at Emory University School of Medicine, was elected as president of the group for the coming year.

Dr. Elkin is an Emory product, graduate of the Medical School in 1920, faculty member there since 1923, and long recognized as outstanding in his field.

We congratulate him on the signal honor which has come from members of his own profession. His election as president of the American Surgical Association reflects credit on the great surgeon himself, on Emory and on the South.

THE PULSE OF THE PUBLIC

Smoking Too Much?

The Editors: Some Senators appear to think that MacArthur's pronouncements are the voice of America. Other members of the Upper House in Washington seem to believe the General is smoking too much Bull Durham.

The Editors: May I suggest that you adopt as motto for the editorial policies of your paper: "Right or Wrong—My Party!"

On Vacation

The Editors: To this date I have seen no comment by Mr. Pegler on the MacArthur affair. Can it be that you are withholding from us Mr. Pegler's valuable comment, in that he is probably, as usual, in disagreement with you in this matter?

Atlanta. READER.

Editor's Note: Westbrook Pegler is on vacation and will be until May 14.

'Great, But Not Greatest'

The Editors: Sometime ago Ralph McGill wrote an editorial describing William T. Sherman as the greatest general of the American War Between the States. While I cannot qualify as a military expert, it seems to me that there are grounds for disagreement.

The Federal Government had command of the sea. All that Sherman really did was to take advantage of this fact, as Sir John Moore and the Duke of Wellington had done in Spain and uncounted generals must have done before them. For all of his astute defense of a fixed base and line of supply, Joe Johnston gave Sherman considerable assistance by backing away toward Atlanta rather than toward Rome and, if necessary, eastern Alabama.

Had Joe Johnston and his predecessors made proper use of the remarkable talent of Nathan Bedford Forrest for disrupting the long supply line of the enemy in Tennessee, it is somewhat doubtful that Sherman would have reached Atlanta in the first place.

Finally, Sherman was given material assistance by the calamitous interplay of public opinion and upper level meddling from Richmond which put John Bell Hood in command at a moment when his penchant for headlong attack was not appropriate to the situation. When Hood pulled away into Alabama and started too late with too little to get on the enemy's supply line in Tennessee, Sherman was given an opportunity which few generals have ever been accorded. He was practically invited to proceed unmolested from Atlanta to the sea.

It cannot be denied that Sherman was a very able man, but nothing in what he did, nothing in the problems he faced and solved, renders obvious the conclusion that he was the greatest general of the American War Between the States. Neither Lee nor Jackson ever had such an opportunity as was given Sherman.

Atlanta. J. E. MCCROAN, JR.

Editor's Note: The column to which Mr. McCroan refers was careful to point out that neither Generals Lee nor Jackson had a chance.

Call for Mail

The Editors: This request may seem unimportant to you, but it means a lot to us, as mail is the only pleasure we have over here.

We have been in Korea since July, and it is apparent that the few people who did write have forgotten us. It leaves a fellow with an odd feeling when all of his buddies sit around and read letters and he has none.

It would be very much appreciated if you could run a few lines in your paper requesting someone to write us.

Lonely

The Editors: I was wondering if you would do me a great favor, for it would help me so much. I am bedridden and have been for some time, as I have the worst kind of arthritis.

I am 23 years old and have had it for seven years. It gets mighty lonesome lying here in bed. If I could get some letters and cards to help pass off the time, it wouldn't be quite so lonesome.

I spent three and a half years in the Navy during World War II. V. C. PALMER. Lexington, Ga., Route 1.

Well Equipped—Physically, That Is

The Senate "Watchdog" Committee on Federal Spending charges emergency agencies are buying the most expensive type furniture.

Nothing's too good for the bureaucrats. . . . After all, it's only tax money.

According to a committee report released yesterday, five emergency agencies have already spent more than a million dollars for furniture and supplies, including, among other things, $22,000 worth of davenport and easy chairs for the Economic Stabilization Agency.

Apparently, if the ESA is not to do anything about inflation, it at least intends to be equipped not to do it comfortably.

Personally, I have always gone along on the theory that, in times of national emergency, expense is no object. But it seems to me you'd have a hard time justifying the purchase of day beds as a defense expenditure.

Besides, certain features of that fancy furniture are obviously superfluous in view of the fact that most bureaucrats furnish their own padding.

Of course, there may be some basis for buying long-life furniture for these so-called emergency bureaus. Experience should have taught us nothing is quite so permanent as a temporary government agency.

GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

GOP Driving Ike to Democrats

WASHINGTON—In their zeal to build up a dominant and controlling issue over the President's dismissal of Gen. MacArthur, the Republican election in 20 years, are apparently out to snatch defeat from the jaws of victory.

Everything the Republicans are doing with respect to the MacArthur incident tends to bring about a situation which will force the Democrats to nominate Gen. Dwight Eisenhower as their presidential candidate next year. Moreover, regardless of any political leanings he may have now, the effect will be to drive Eisenhower into the ranks of the Democrats.

By going all out in their support of Gen. MacArthur the Republicans are committing themselves to a series of issues, vital to the national interests, on which Eisenhower stands squarely on the opposite side.

On the issue of military against civilian control, the usurpation of which brought about MacArthur's downfall, Gen. Eisenhower has a meticulous respect for the supremacy of civilian authority that is well known. He reiterated this in the comment he made on the President's action.

On the issue of whether we are to give top priority to Asia or to Europe in the fight on Communism, the two men are diametrically opposed. MacArthur is for waging all-out war against Communism in Asia. Eisenhower believes that Western Europe should be the focal point of our defense plans, because there lies the greatest concentration of industrial power outside the United States and Russia.

Eisenhower's thesis is that wars are won by industrial power. By that criterion, Western Europe, he reminds, is the far greater prize. He has warned that if we allow the industrial and manpower resources of Western Europe to pass by default to the control of the Kremlin, then our national security is in jeopardy.

As between the conflicting positions of these two outstanding military men, there can be no doubt as to where reason and logic lie. Yet that is the issue which the Republicans appear to be determined to thrust upon the American people.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York has launched a boom for Eisenhower to become the Republican presidential nominee in 1952. But, with the Republicans embracing the MacArthur side of the controversy, it is inconceivable that Gen. Eisenhower could accept the GOP nomination even if it were offered him.

The inevitable result, therefore, will be to force Gen. Eisenhower over to the Democratic side of the issue. Because of his known views on the question and the position he occupies as Allied commander in Western Europe, he is bound to be drawn into the fight as epitomizing the opposite side to MacArthur.

A Natural Hence the Republicans are driving from their ranks the one man who would be more certain of victory, if he were the party nominee for President. And by the same token, they are creating a situation which leads on inexorably to an Eisenhower nomination for President on the Democratic ticket.

It remains only to be said that the overwhelming consensus of informed sources now is that President Truman has no intention of seeking a third term. With the President out of the running, the Democrats will have no outstanding man available for the nomination. Eisenhower is the one man who would give the party greater prospects of victory than anyone else. With the issue shaping up as it is, he would be a natural. If he openly declared himself available, he would, beyond any doubt, as things stand today, be nominated on the first ballot.

Thus the defeat which the Republicans are reaching out to snatch from the jaws of prospective victory. By embracing the issues raised over Gen. MacArthur, they are certain, it seems, to go down to political doom. And for a party which has been out of power for 20 years they might be inviting political oblivion.

"The Lord redeemeth the soul of his servants; and none of them that trust in him shall be desolate."—Psalms 32:22.

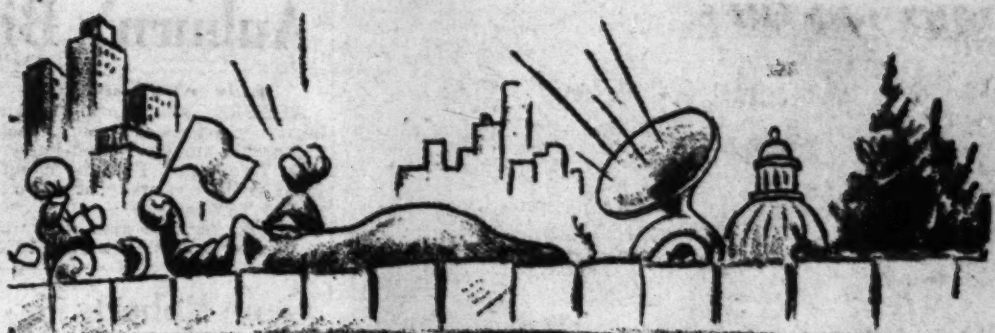

John Wesley strove with his fears, with his unhallowed impulses until he stood with uplifted face in the light of the glorious knowledge that God had for Christ's sake forgiven his sins.

This same sense of acceptance in the sight of God we may all have.

We must have it, or we grovel with a vague unrest. Today, if we harden not our hearts, we can feel the burden lifted and cast out.

The Father's love is constant. It surrounds and upholds us. He is more willing to forgive than we are to believe, more eager to redeem than we are to yield.

By faith we draw near to Thee, O God our Father, knowing that Thou art at hand. Let faith and patience have their perfect work in us, for Thy name's sake.

They Can Take You for a Ride

Spring has brought to Georgia that perennial problem, the carnival. The first caravan of the season pulled out of Marietta Saturday night after a week's stand, leaving a few empty purses and indignation in its wake, according to a story in The Marietta Journal. In fact, one councilman in the Cobb County seat was angered to the point that he proposes a $5,000-a-day license fee for all such shows. "Wide-open gambling which should be stopped immediately," is his description of the games which allegedly clipped the citizens, one they say for $400. (The carnival got at least a buck and a half of mine. Not across the gaming board, mind you. The carousel, the trains and the planes can shoot a dollar in a hurry when you have a five-year-old bent on travel. A merry-go-round whirl at 20 cents comes high, but what can you expect when inflation is taking us all for a ride and getting us nowhere just as fast?)

Simultaneous with the councilman's blast, Harry Scoggins, high sheriff, declared war on gaming at shows in the county, saying that he intended to crack down regardless of the sponsor. The thought was father of the deed and Monday night the sheriff, moving in on a carnival at Acworth, told the manager not to bother to unpack his dice tables and roulette wheels.

"The carnival in town last week was no better nor worse than most of them," the Cobb sheriff said. "But gambling is against the law and we aim to stop it."

THE PROBLEM is a common one. The carnival which comes to town, usually under local sponsorship and hence permit fee-free, is currently the object of editorial criticism and of close scrutiny by law enforcers.

Not all carnivals are bad nor are all features of any carnival bad. No one would deprive the kids of a chance at the rides and the cotton candy.

But the carnival which adds to the community crime problem because it has a crew it can't control, the outfit notorious for its gyp joints is going to find increasingly tough sledding.

The season is open and in many Georgia counties it's open season for shady operators. The carnival owner might as well take the hint, put his house in order and get ready to pay his way.

MAGAZINE SALESMEN are working their way through the country, too. Richland, Ga., has already had trouble with a crew of teen-agers peddling subscriptions. In an appeal for subscriptions, the boys in the group claimed to be orphans and the girls said they were missionaries. Brought to account, the boys admitted they had parents and their sisters in misrepresentation confessed their only mission was to get your name on the line.

There are reputable magazine representatives in each community, folks well known to everyone. It's always safest to do business with them.

I LIKE this bit of philosophy which Lowell Nussbaum, columnist for The Indianapolis Star, picked up from the prisoners' own publication at the Indiana Reformatory. This author, an inmate, had found a dog within the prison walls. Here's what he had to say about it:

"I patted a real honest-to-God dog last week . . . I busted in from the free world . . . when the happy-go-lucky varmint moseyed right on up to me, waggin' its tail for all it was worth and trustin' me 'bout battin' an eyelash, danged if I didn't feel like slappin' it a kick . . . don't know for sure why. Guess it was just because I knew if he went around tryin' to make friends with just anyone like that, he was goin' to get bit sure as hell."

The same fellow, who does a sports column under a pen name, "The Roamer," wrote: "It's been quite a few years since the Ole Man first drove up, rubbed out the wrinkles the cuffs had made, and started in a whittlin' on a worrisome 1-10 (the long way). In these years of wishing, waiting, wondering and watching the watchman, I have this to say: 'I WANT OUT OF HERE!'"

THOMAS L. STOKES

A Soldier for the White House?

WASHINGTON—It is only a little more than a year before the national conventions of our two great political parties meet to nominate candidates for President and Vice-President. Our people are beginning, as usual, to look forward to that time of decision. We find ourselves today in a state of emotional upheaval induced by various discontents germinated by the international crisis and our common defense program. The tendency is to look for a savior, for a mythical and illusive "hero." For that the military figure is most convenient. It is only natural, therefore, that this should translate itself into the field of politics and that, in anticipation of the election next year of a national political leader—a President—public interest should concentrate in military figures. Events have catapulted two such to the fore.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower re-emerged in an active role that directed political attention his way again dramatically when he was appointed commander of the combined European army under the Atlantic Pact. Now we find him at the top of the Gallup Poll of both parties, but drawing more support among Democrats than among Republicans as a 1952 presidential candidate.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, now returning home in the martyred-hero role, finds himself the darling of many Republicans. Again we see "MacArthur for President" clubs blooming up all over in that lushness typical of sudden emotional spurts among our people.

Interest is sharpened in these two particular military figures just now because they have become symbols of the conflicting schools on foreign policy, whether emphasis should be on Europe—the Eisenhower view—or on Asia—the MacArthur idea.

So, for the moment at least, the two men are pitted against each other in terms of the White House.

Gen. Eisenhower refused to run on either ticket in 1948 when there was a similar emotional upheaval for a savior. That hankering for a hero was nicely exploited then by politicians in both parties looking for a sure winner, a factor also present in calculations of politicians today. Gen. MacArthur's 1948 boom was rudely punctured when Harold Stassen beat him in the Wisconsin preferential primary.

So the military threat then was averted. It is hereby devoutly hoped that it will be averted again in both parties. This is no reflection whatever on the two generals, both capable military men. But the military temperament is not suited or adapted to the White House nor adaptable in the White House, especially in times such as these. This is no new position here, but has been presented since the Eisenhower 1948 boom.

It is grounded in our traditions of civilian ascendancy over our affairs, as well as in experience. While several men have been helped to the Presidency by military careers that were only interruptions to civilian pursuits, there have been only one professional soldier who served for any length of time in the White House.

That was Ulysses S. Grant. His administration was an unhappy one. Both Generals Eisenhower and MacArthur are professional soldiers, having spent their lives at it.

The best thing ever said on the subject is this:

"It is my conviction that the necessary and wise subordination of the military to civil power will be best sustained, and our people will have greater confidence that it is so sustained, when lifelong professional soldiers, in the absence of some obvious and overriding reasons, abstain from seeking high political office. . . .

"Politics is a profession, a serious, complicated and, in its true sense, a noble one.

"In the American scene I see no dearth of men fitted by training, talent and integrity for national leadership. On the other hand, nothing in the international or domestic situation especially qualifies for this important office in the world a man whose adult years have been spent in their country's military forces. At least, that is true in my case."

That was Gen. Eisenhower's studied conviction written in 1948.

It is still sound. There still is no "obvious and overriding reason" for a military man in the White House.

The Riddle of Gen. Douglas MacArthur

The prime minister at the time was the venerable Baron Kijuro Shidehara. (Nowadays Baron Shidehara is plain "Mr. Shidehara," because titles have been abolished in Japan except for a few members of the royal family.) His foreign minister was Shigeru Yoshida, the prime minister today. Both, even though they had opposed the war, thought that MacArthur's purge went too far, and, full of Japanese pride and the instinct to reach for a showdown, decided to risk a showdown with MacArthur and announce the resignation of the cabinet in protest.

In those days, before the new constitution was in force, a cabinet resigned in the conventional manner by turning in its mandate to the Emperor.

Shidehara, fearful of a personal encounter with MacArthur, had a diplomatic "illness" and sent the wily Mr. Yoshida to represent him. The Supreme Commander received Yoshida at once, with Gen. Whitney present. Yoshida thereupon proceeded to say the cabinet would present its resignation to the Emperor the next day, and the Emperor would then presumably charge Baron Shidehara with forming a new government.

MacArthur, affixing Mr. Yoshida with his famous burning (but cold) stare, said the following: "Mr. Minister, I have the highest regard for Baron Shidehara, and I know of no one better qualified to carry out the terms of MY directive (about the purge), but if the Cabinet resigns on mass tomorrow it can only be interpreted by the Japanese people to mean that it is unable to implement my directives. Thereafter Baron Shidehara may be acceptable to the Emperor for reappointment as Prime Minister, but he will not be acceptable to ME."

THERE FOLLOWED, in the words of an official account, "a moment of profound silence." Mr. Yoshida said finally and falteringly he would transmit this message to the Prime Minister; Gen. Whitney accompanied him down the corridor to the elevator.

"You understand what the Supreme Commander said, did you not, Mr. Minister?" Whitney asked politely.

Yoshida replied, "Too well, too well!"

The cabinet did not resign. The purged ministers resigned, their places were taken by others acceptable to MacArthur, and the government continued.

HERBERT L. MATTHEWS

There Is a Definite Dictatorship Pattern

Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution.

Second in a series of articles on Argentina

The Argentine police force is better trained, better disciplined and better armed than the army and now numbers more than 30,000. As all police forces do, it obeys the ruling power, but since there is a struggle for power, a time will come when the police must choose and their weight could well be decisive.

General Peron has more to fear from such forces within his regime than from popular discontent or the opposition. His political opponents, who now are loosely grouped under the Radical party, are courageous, intelligent and experienced, but they have no positive program and no mass following. Like the conservatives of the previous ruling oligarchical class, the party had some liberal ideas, but never carried them out, and now finds all its liberal thunder stolen by Peronism.

The so-called oligarchy is made up of a few thousand immensely wealthy landowners and the upper brackets of the business and professional classes. It made the fatal error of repressing the upsurge of democracy and it did not provide the sort of benefits and rights that labor has earned for itself in contemporary times.

Therefore, it is a politically discredited class, although it numbers many of the finest, most cultured and most high-minded Argentines among its number.

Dr. Alberto Gainza Paz, publisher of La Prensa, belongs to this last-named elite. It is an aristocratic family that has remained quietly apart from society and from the Government for generations because its members have considered the running of La Prensa to be a high mission, to which they devoted their lives. Socially, they rank far above President and Senora Peron, and that has been one source of friction. General Peron boasts that he has a labor government and he has fostered a class struggle against such families as the Gainza Paz.

Consequently, one sees no alternative to Peronism, and that constitutes its major strength. At the same time, Peronism has to integrate its own power before it can be safe. This is exactly the problem that Mussolini faced after the Matteotti affair in 1924. By 1926, Mussolini succeeded in creating the Fascist state as we know it today, but it was tough and go for some months.

If General and Senora Peron hold together and gather the reins of power firmly in their hands, they could last indefinitely, but they would have to create a real totalitarian state and dominate it together. This would be something new under the sun, and it would be extraordinary if it assumed a 50-50 character, since human nature is not like that.

One hears much speculation in Argentina as to which is the stronger character and which will be the dominant figure in the future. Opinions seem fairly evenly divided, but no one denies that Senora Peron is one of the most remarkable, most attractive, most forceful and most colorful women of modern times. She has already achieved fame and her star is still rising. It could conceivably flame across the pages of contemporary history with startling brightness.

Peronism is steadily moving along the road toward totalitarianism and it is because independent newspapers such as La Prensa and La Nacion of Buenos Aires blocked the road that they were persecuted. There is a pattern of dictatorship that fits Juan Peron as it fitted Mussolini, Hitler, Stalin, Franco, Salazar and others.

Each one in his way was forced to create a totalitarian structure to maintain power, and while no two systems are exactly alike the analogies between Italian Fascism and Argentine Peronism are so close that they cannot be accidental. The Peron regime is easier to understand when one makes this comparison.

President Peron was a military attaché in Rome in the years before the second World War and it is obvious that Mussolini's system made a deep impression on him. Like most Argentines, especially their military men, General Peron has a profound conviction that Argentina, not the United States, is the true and natural leader of Latin America.

Some of the analogies to Italian Fascism are unimportant but significant. General Peron has used the balcony of the Casa Rosada, or Government House, the way Mussolini used the balcony of the Palazzo Venezia to harangue the crowds or appear before them.

Just as Fascism had its stirring march of the "Giovinezza," so this movement has its "Muchachos Peronistas," the march of "the Peronista boys." Oct. 28, the anniversary of the march on Rome is here "Glorious Oct. 17," commemorating the then Colonel Peron's release from jail in 1945 and the seizure of power in Buenos Aires. The use of photographs of General and Senora Peron everywhere is typical.

So is the use of the title "Lider" (Leader, Duce, Fuehrer, Caudillo). So is the slogan one comes upon at every turn, "Peron Cumple" (Peron gets things done), which is better than "Mussolini is always right." But for that matter, "Peron is always right" to Peronistas.

Susy's Rebellion--Second Phase

The human spirit must have need of judicious doses of loneliness. Having grown up alone in a one-child family we didn't know that. When we have thought about being alone we've remembered the long Summer afternoons when nothing broke the stillness except the sleepy drone of crickets and the occasional haunting note of the mourning doves that lived across the millpond. On those afternoons we wandered about alone and lonely. There was nothing much to do in the heat of the day. Grownups either worked or took naps. Reading was no fun at such times because all the books told about fun which children had with other children—and that just made our loneliness more acute. If you could just have a brother or a sister, we thought, you'd never again have to wish for somebody to play with.

And so we thought when our children came, there'd always be somebody to play with, somebody to share your fun and your griefs. Never any loneliness in our family again.

It was something to exult about, we thought, and that's why we weren't prepared for what is now known as Susy's Rebellion.

Susy's normally sunny disposition started clabbering several months ago. We worried when she snapped and snarled at her roommate, Mary, and we were troubled to see that they didn't seem to play together any more. There couldn't be that much difference in the interests of a 10-year-old and a seven-year-old, we knew. We tried to talk to Susy about it but she was so explosive on the subject we didn't accomplish much.

"It's just that Mary's always got to BE where I am!" she cried. "I can't have a single thing to myself. Everything I have she gets into! And even if she's scared to bother some of my things she always KNOWS about 'em! I'm just sick of always BEING with somebody."

Reluctantly we admitted it might get tiresome. But there was only that one bedroom for the two of them. The sleeping porch, although glassed in, was unheated and unfit for Winter occupancy.

"I don't care," said Susy, "I'll take it." So we moved her bed and her chest of drawers, her bookshelf and her lamp, her doll cradle and her chair out there—and for two weeks we didn't see much of Susy. She did not deign to join the others around the desk in the living room to do her homework, but wrapped up in her comforter, put the heating pad to her feet and worked alone in her room.

We looked in on her as often as we dared and we found she lay on her bed reading, listening to her radio and eating mustard pickles from the bottle. She didn't greet us with any particular warmth when we visited her in her "cave" and it worried us. Once we started to open her door and we found a sign on it.

"Huck (the cat) is welcome. Nobody else. Please knock."

We "knotted" timidly and she received us cordially and offered us a mustard pickle. She had rearranged her furniture and she wanted somebody to admire it. We admired and courteously left. But we worried.

A little girl should enjoy being with her family. What use to have a vast family of three children if they withdrew from one another? What was wrong with our Susy?

Jimmy was entertained by our concern. "Aw, Mama," he chortled, "you know Susy's nuts!" "Shut up!" we ordered him.

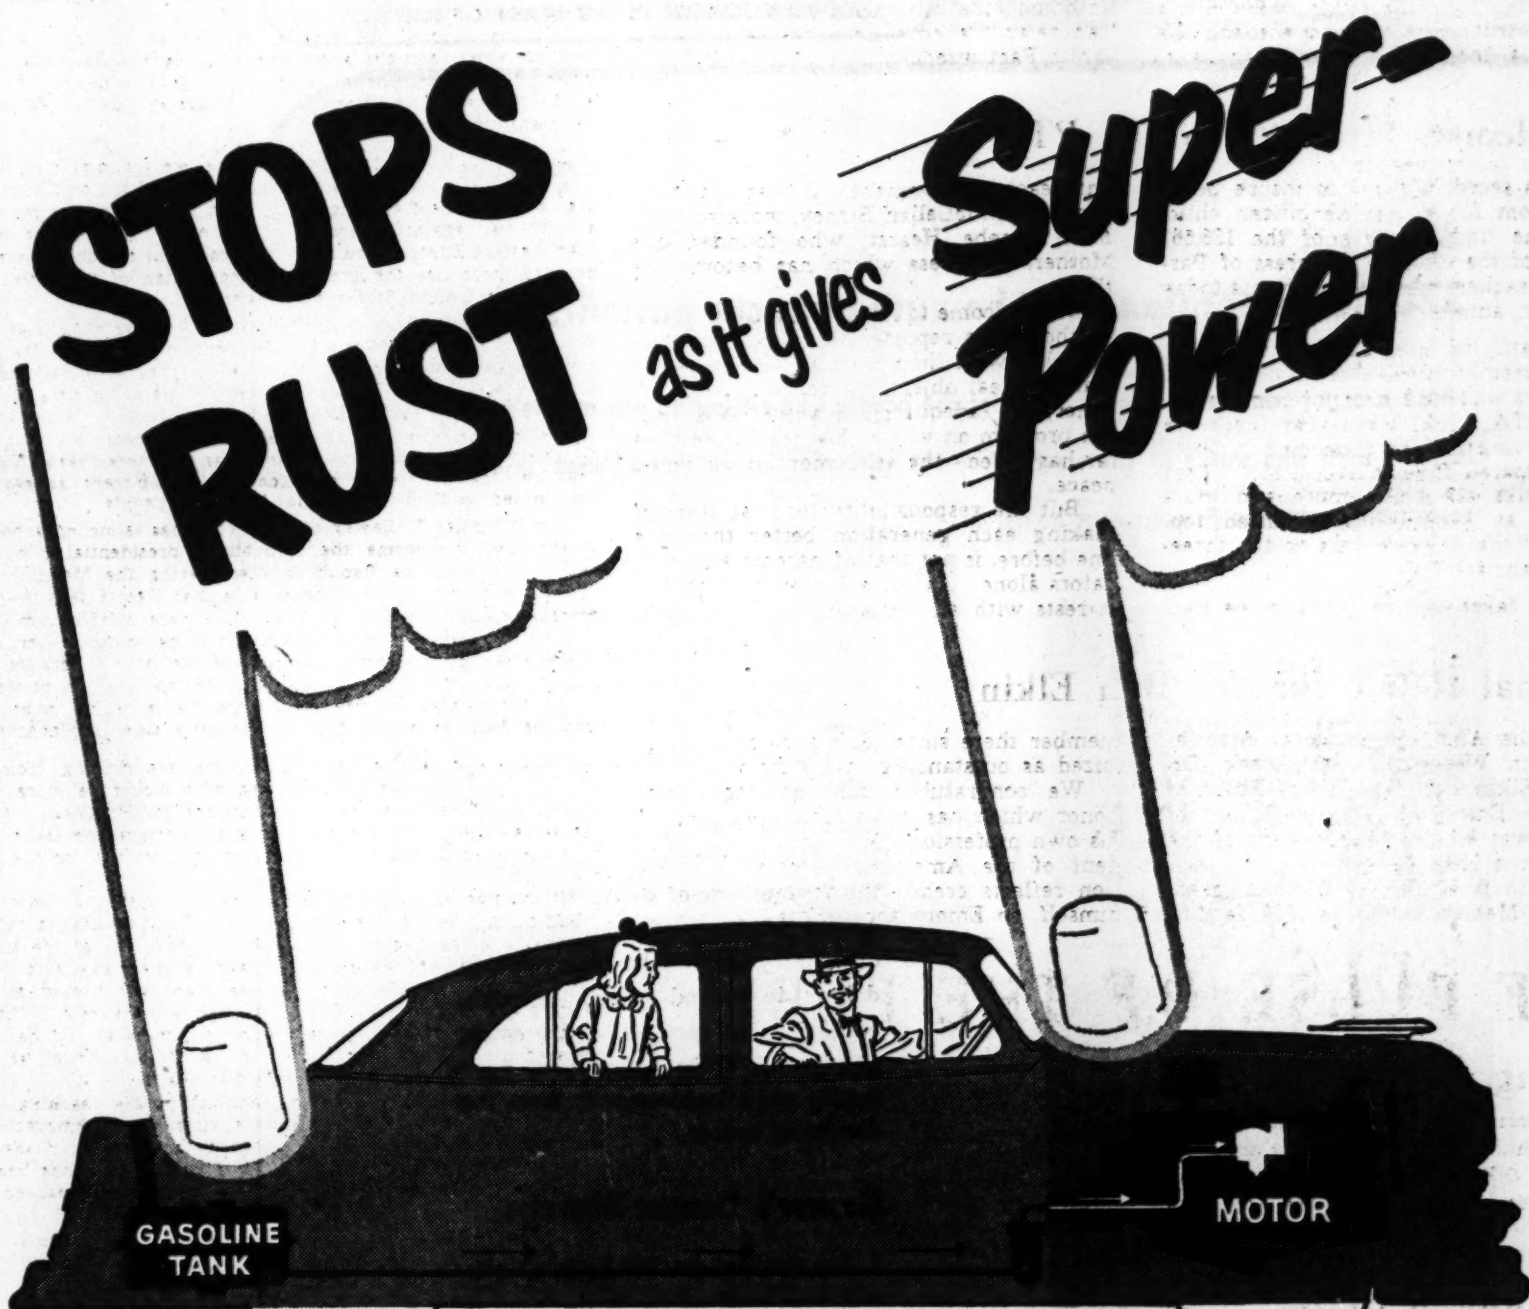

"It's your mama who's nuts," his father put in. "She doesn't remember that there are times when people have to be by themselves."

"Ha," said Jimmy, enlightened. "It's a Phoebe, huh?"

We ignored him but we wondered. And it turned out they were both right. After three weeks of hermitry Susy's disposition miraculously improved. She invited the family to have bedtime cocoa in her room and just last night she lowered the barrier a bit more. We told her goodnight and prepared to close her door.

"Mother," she said, "would you let the door stay open and Mary and me talk a little bit after the lights are out? It's more friendly-like that way."

Chief Jenkins Says No One Here Is Above Law

Law enforcement is easier in Atlanta than in many cities "because no person in Atlanta is immune to arrest," Police Chief Herbert Jenkins declared here Tuesday.

Addressing a meeting of the Atlanta Civitan Club attended by Sol Gen. Paul Webb and the current Fulton County Grand Jury, Chief Jenkins praised local citizens, newspapers and grand juries for demanding and supporting impartial law enforcement.

GAMBLING HOUSES

He said police chiefs from other cities had told him there were persons they could not arrest — and certain gambling houses they could not raid.

Reiterating his contention that Atlanta has "no organized gambling as such," he said the key reason for the good record here was that no powers-that-be dictated who would or would not be arrested.

Chief Jenkins stressed the importance of thorough training and supervision of a police force and the elimination of "misfits."

He said the graft and corruption exposed by the Kefauver Committee in other cities could be attributed to "many things" including the fact that policemen are subject to all the weaknesses of human nature.

LIQUOR PROBE HELD

Chief Jenkins said charges of a "big liquor empire" in this area had prompted him to investigate liquor store operators in Atlanta. He said he found that with few exceptions they had clean police records—"as good as filling station operators, grocery store operators or bus operators."

He pointed out the city poured 1,000 gallons of illegal liquor a month down the sewers.

Chief Jenkins praised the work of the 12 Negro men and six Negro women on the police force. He said they were doing "a good job—and no apologies need be made for them." He said white officers who had largely opposed adding Negroes to the force "now recognize them as necessary."

320,000 Georgians can be cured cancer patients

These are not remote people . . . they're the people who sit beside you on the trolley, the man who works at the next desk, the girl who hands you change in the restaurant, someone in your own home.

At the present rate 640,000 Georgians will have cancer at some time during their lifetime. Half of them can be saved if treated early. Yet 3,301 died of cancer in Georgia last year . . . 1,650 needlessly. There are two things you can do to help prevent this waste. You can be thoroughly schooled in the 7 symptoms of early cancer, and spread this knowledge as far as you can. And you can contribute valuable dollars to extend cancer research, education, and services. Every dollar you spend helps guard you, your family and all of humanity from the danger of cancer.

Cancer's Danger Signals:

1. Any sore that does not heal;
2. A lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere;
3. Unusual bleeding or discharge;
4. Any change in a wart or mole;
5. Persistent indigestion or difficulty in swallowing;
6. Persistent hoarseness or cough;
7. Any change in normal bowel habits.

Color Knowledge Adds Fun To Home Redecorating

Knowledge of color makes home decoration easy. Any home-maker can turn her home into a picture of comfort and beauty if she knows the basic colors. The three basic colors are red, yellow and blue, and from these stem the hundreds of different shades and tints which add glamour to the home and fun to decorating.

There are cool colors for rooms situated on the south or east side of the house, or for homes in the warmer climates. These are blues, greens, and violets and, like sky and water, they are cooling and restful.

For north and west rooms, where the sun doesn't have such a warming effect, the effect of warmth can be created by the use of warm colors, such as shades of red, orange and yellow. They are stimulating and cheerful, like fire and sunset.

For problem rooms there are advancing and receding colors. The advancing colors are the dark intense colors. The use of a very dark gray on the end wall of an oblong room in which the other three walls are light gray, for example, will cut the apparent length of the room. Receding colors—the pale pastel shades—give the cramped, small room an illusion of airiness or spaciousness and seemingly push the walls back.

A simple outline for the housewife to follow is this: Every scheme needs a dark, a light and a bright color. The bright color should be used only in small doses as an accent. First to consider are the walls and floor coverings, because they are the largest areas of color.

Monochromatic color schemes (one color and its variations) are becoming popular, particularly in bedrooms because of their restful effect. The use of cool colors, too, is best for bedrooms, for their serenity is an aid to sleep.

For example, one might do the walls in forest green and use a very light shade of green or neutral for the floor covering. A bedspread, in a fabric with a white ground and various shades of green, a touch of cherry red in the print, would provide interest and contrast.

The draperies may blend with the walls—either the same color or a shade darker or lighter. This avoids the chopped up feeling and creates the illusion, by continuity, of larger proportions. Then lamp shades and, perhaps, an occasional chair, in cherry red would pick up the red in the bedspread and provide an effective bright or accent color.

Leading the over-all color parade this year is yellow, in all its shades and tones. Neutrals, such as black, white, gray, beige and brown are also favorites, for they can be added to enhance the beauty of any color scheme.

Who Must Figure Taxes?

Who is responsible for figuring and paying the domestic social security tax—the husband or wife?

That question had even the Collector of Internal Revenue baffled Friday. With masculine pride he declared: "The responsibility rests with the employer and offhand I'd say the return would usually be filed by the husband. He's the employer and head of the home—in theory anyway."

Banker Baxter Maddox of the First National Bank, said, "I've already done it myself—filled in the blank and sent the check three weeks ago."

Banker Maddox was more familiar with percentage than were some housewives contacted.

Said Mrs. Joseph D. Ratterree: "My husband does that job. I couldn't figure 1½ percent if I worked until 1960."

Mrs. Herman Talmadge, wife of the Governor, said she had trouble finding her cook's social security card. "I finally got it, though, and sent the check yesterday," Mrs. Talmadge said.

A good many women explained the problem solved itself simply by having no help. Mrs. Richard H. Rich said that her husband took charge of filling the proper forms and paying the tax.

Relax, Learn To Forget Intelligently

Learn to relax and you forget how to worry. According to leading doctors and psychologists, learning to relax is learning to forget intelligently. People tend to incorporate tensions of the past in their present muscle tensions, but worry cannot exist in a totally relaxed body.

However, relaxation isn't something that can happen overnight like magic. It takes practice. At least two half-hour periods a day are recommended as practice time for relaxing. It is the frequency and regularity of this practice that is the secret of successful relaxation, and consequently, a happier state of mind.

First in a program of relaxing, one should choose a room where he won't be disturbed. Then he should stretch out on a level, resilient bed with a buoyant pillow under his head and neck, a large pillow under his knees and a smaller pillow under each elbow. The pillows cannot be limp or lifeless, though, as there is no support in limp, worn out pillows. These pillows are to take away some of the strain of support from the larger muscles.

After one is properly settled on a comfortable bed and propped up with good pillows, he is advised to start "talking" to the various muscles of his body. Beginning at the top of the head and working down to the toes, he should tell his muscles to "let go" and then "let go some more." As he speaks, he thinks of his body becoming heavier and heavier and more relaxed. If he follows this relaxation practice regularly, he'll find that tensions gradually diminish until they have completely disappeared.

Right Number Gives Dinner Menu

Here in America we've gotten it pretty much down to a science, this business of reaching the public. If people don't read the newspapers, they listen to the radio. If radio doesn't appeal, they'll watch TV. And practically everybody has a favorite magazine or two.

Well, fellows, somebody's thought of something else. There's a report from Western Germany that the automatic telephone "program" is gaining popularity there. A homemaker looking for ideas can sit down at her phone and dial for a complete menu for dinner. A businessman can phone for latest stock market quotations. Sports results? Just dial 'em.

They say you can get just about any information you want on anything under the sun, providing you have the right number.

There may be many reasons for the boy's silence, only one of which is that he might no longer be interested in you. Perhaps he's having financial troubles and simply can't afford to date, maybe his school work has been slipping and he has to concentrate on studying every spare moment. Or perhaps his promise to call simply slipped his mind for a week or so, and now he's embarrassed to give you a jingle.

So don't scare him off with a cold shoulder if he eventually phones; many a fellow is scared off when he senses that a girl is trying to trap him into regular dates.

Boy's 'I'll Call' Phrase Rather Than Promise

By SHEILA JOHN DALY

"For two weeks now I've been hanging around the telephone at home, just waiting for it to ring for me. But now I'm beginning to give up hope. I guess he's never going to call me. He is a cute fellow I met at school during a tryout for our class play. We read our lines together and afterward he asked me to have a sundae with him. He walked me home and asked for a date for the following Friday."

"I thought the date went very well; we seemed to have fun together and I was sure the boy would ask me out again. When he dropped me off at home, he thanked me for a good time and said, 'Well, I'll call you.'"

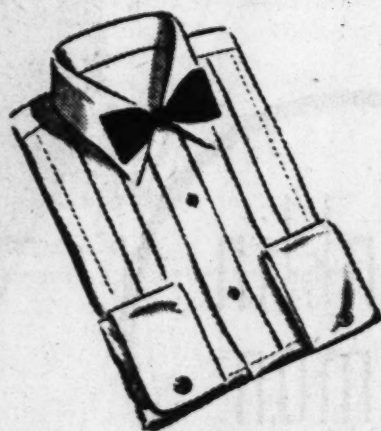

"I was tempted right then to ask when, but I restrained myself, keeping my fingers crossed that he'd phone soon. But I haven't heard a word from him since. I haven't seen him in school, either (we don't have any classes together). All I can do is sit and wait. But I won't know how to act toward this boy if I should see him in school or if he finally should phone. I don't like boys who break their promises and, after all, he did say he'd call."

With some boys, the familiar phrase "Well, I'll call you" is just a friendly farewell, a pleasant way to end a date with a hint of more fun to follow. It's a little like saying, "I'll see you around," and doesn't tie a fellow down to any definite deadline. So don't get huffy with the fellow if he finally does call or if you run into him in the halls at school. He said he'd call, it's true, but he didn't say exactly when—and you have no right to hold a stop watch on him.

There may be many reasons for the boy's silence, only one of which is that he might no longer be interested in you. Perhaps he's having financial troubles and simply can't afford to date, maybe his school work has been slipping and he has to concentrate on studying every spare moment. Or perhaps his promise to call simply slipped his mind for a week or so, and now he's embarrassed to give you a jingle.

Coast to Coast Cookery

By AGNES REASOR OLMSTEAD

While there are plenty of apples around to enjoy and to "cook-up" in new ways, here are some excellent apple recipes you will want for your Best Recipe File. These are from my reference book of recipes from food editors all over the United States. They are typical, best-liked recipes from the women in that area.

"Since apples represent the No. 3 industry in size of farm income in the state of Washington you would expect good recipes from us," writes Dorothy Neighbors, food editor, Seattle Times. "This is a standard dessert."

APPLE DUMPLINGS WITH CINNAMON SAUCE

2 cups sifted flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup shortening
7 tablespoons ice water
6 medium-size apples
1/2 cup sugar
1 1/2 teaspoons cinnamon
1 tablespoon butter

Sift flour with salt. Cut in shortening with pastry blender. Add just enough ice water to make a soft dough. Roll out on lightly floured board; cover with grated apple; sprinkle with a mixture of the sugar and cinnamon and dot with butter. Roll up as with jelly roll. Cut in one-inch slices. Place cut side up, about one inch apart in a greased baking dish and top with the following sauce. Bake in a very hot oven, 450 degrees, for 7 minutes, then reduce heat to 350 degrees and bake 40 minutes longer.

SAUCE

1/4 cup sugar
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup water
1 tablespoon butter
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1/4 teaspoon allspice
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg

Mix sugar and flour. Add water and lemon juice. Cook together until clear and thick. Add spices and pour over dumplings.

"This loaf of bread uses some of our apples, many of which find their way to applesauce processors, to the cider mills and the vinegar works," says Harriet Cooke, Buffalo Evening News (and the winner of a beautiful diamond at our Food Editors conference last year).

APPLE SAUCE BREAD

1/2 cup shortening
1/2 cup light brown sugar, packed in cup
2 eggs
1 cup thick applesauce (sweetened or unsweetened)
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup broken nutmeats

Mix shortening, sugar and eggs thoroughly. Stir in applesauce. Sift flour with baking powder, soda and salt. Add to mixture with the nuts. Pour into well-buttered loaf pan (5x10x3 inches) and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for about 55 minutes or until loaf tests done. Turn from pan to cool.

In the Pittsburgh (Pa.) district, apples are the most important fruit grown. Food Editor Marion G. Leslie, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, says this apple pudding came from the Brookside Farms group.

PENNSYLVANIA PUDDING

6 tart apples
1 1/2 cups sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup shortening
1/2 cup sugar
1 egg, well beaten
1/2 cup water
2-ounce bar of milk chocolate

Peel and slice apples. Place in greased baking dish. Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt. Cream shortening and add sugar. Cream until light and fluffy. Add egg and beat. Add flour alternately with water until smooth. Pour batter over apples. Grate chocolate and scatter over top of batter. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 1 hour.

Mr., Mrs. Palmer to Greet Daughter in New York

By ANNIE LOU HARDY

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Palmer leave this week for New York to meet their daughter, Mrs. Jacob M. Cath, of Leiden, Holland, who sailed Tuesday on the Nieuw Amsterdam from Rotterdam, landing in New York on April 25. This will be Mrs. Cath's first visit home since her marriage to Mr. Cath in Zurich, Switzerland, last November. She is the former Jeannette Palmer.

Mrs. Cath will visit her sister, Mrs. T. W. Benedict, the former Laura Palmer, in New Canaan, Conn., before going on to Boston, Mass., to secure an apartment in preparation for her husband's arrival in mid-Summer. Mr. Cath, who is studying law at the University of Leiden, expects to graduate in June, and shortly afterwards he will sail for New York to enter the Harvard Business School in September.

Mrs. Cath will furnish her Boston apartment with antiques, bought in Holland and which she is bringing with her. As soon as everything is arranged she will come to Atlanta for a visit to her parents and to await Mr. Cath's arrival.

DR. AND MRS. RUFUS A. ASKEW and their children, Bucky, Suzanna and Tony, have returned from a 10-day visit by plane to Jamaica, where they were guests at the Tower Isle Hotel. Mrs. Askew was impressed by the beautiful Oxford English spoken by the natives and a little surprised to find in that climate that the middle of the day from 1:30 to 3 o'clock is chilly and windy, due to the Trade Winds. The children enjoyed most the wearing of jippi-jappa hats and a trip by raft down the Rio Grande River, with natives poling the rafts.

MEMBERS OF THE TECH WOMAN'S CLUB will gather for tea Wednesday as guests of Mrs. A. R. Marshall at her home, 1284 Emory Cir., N. E., in Decatur. The calling hours are from 3 to 5 o'clock. Assisting the hostess in entertaining will be Mesdames Hal Brown, D. W. Dutton, J. S. Dwyer, Charles Griffin, H. V. Grubb, R. S. Howell, Roy A. Martin, E. L. McMichael, Jr., W. V. Neisius, A. S. 1,500 PTA Members Gather Here For 37th Annual State Convention

By YOLANDE GWIN

With official registration set for 10 a. m. Wednesday at the O'Keefe High School, approximately 1,500 members of the Georgia Congress of Parents and Teachers will open their 37th annual convention in Atlanta Wednesday afternoon at 2 p. m. with State President Mrs. Ralph Hobbs presiding.

On the convention agenda are outstanding speakers, including three men, and a variety of programs attuned to the theme of "The Citizen Child." Scheduled to speak at the Wednesday afternoon session is Dr. E. B. Norton, of Florence, Ala., chairman of the Committee on School Education, and at the night session to be held at the University Center, the delegates and members will hear

Dr. Paul S. Weaver, Dean of Religious Education at Stephens College in Columbia, Mo., speak on the "Spiritual Values for Modern Living."

Dr. Paul S. Weaver, Dean of Religious Education at Stephens College in Columbia, Mo., speak on the "Spiritual Values for Modern Living."

On the Thursday program will be a panel on youth with high school students taking part in the section on the "Teen-Age Drivers" with Russell Leverett, of Georgia Tech, as the moderator. There will also be a discussion by Paul Blaisdell, Executive Director of the National Committee on Traffic Safety. A group of top-ranking figures in the safety work of the state congress will also take part.

Dr. John I. Goodlad, chairman and acting director Teacher Education at Emory University, will speak Thursday preceding the luncheon, honoring founders and life members. This affair is to be held for the first time at a state convention and takes place at the Biltmore Hotel. That afternoon, a panel on "Why Federal Aid for Education?" will be led by Dr. Irwin V. Sperry of the University of Georgia. The annual banquet honoring local presidents takes place at the Biltmore Hotel Thursday night.

Delegates will wind up their convention Friday by hearing

Mrs. Walter Beckham, of Miami, Fla., Vice President of Region III of the National Congress, speak on "Facing Our Task."

Five district Directors scheduled for nomination at the Wednesday afternoon meeting include Mrs. J. Hayden Davis, of Adel, Second District; Mrs. Carl Savage, of Montezuma, Fifth; Mrs. Harold F. Hodges, of Atlanta, Eighth; Mrs. E. W. Farlow, of Augusta, Eleventh, and Mrs. Tom Day, of Acworth, Fourteenth.

On the opening day's program there will also be an announcement of the achievements made during the past year, with special emphasis placed on the contributions to the national headquarters building fund. The Georgia Congress, according to informed sources, is $5,000 short of its goal, but convention delegates will reduce this in their purchases of small gold bricks which will be sold by members of the Fulton County Council.

Regardless of the $5,000 deficit, the Georgia Congress is way out in front in its financial contributions to the building fund, as evidenced by the fact that 379 units are 100% in headquarters contributions. This is notable achievement in national PTA circles.

At the pre-convention dinner at the Woman's Club honoring the state board and given by members of the Fulton County Council, silver-haired Miss Kathleen Mitchell, an honorary vice president for life of the Fulton Council, was presented an antique pin. A floor show was presented by a group of students from E. Rivers School.

Dr. Paul S. Weaver, of Stephens College, of Columbia, Mo., scheduled to arrive in the City late Wednesday afternoon for his talk that evening to the convention, will find an additional affair arranged for his brief visit when members of the Stephens College Club entertain him informally after his talk at the University Center.

A new high in buffet entertaining will be reached at the E. Rivers School Wednesday afternoon when 1,000 guests will gather for a menu of ham, potato and chicken salad, coagulated salad, coffee, hot breads, sherbert and other tempting "accessories."

Stocks Halt At Starting Levels

NEW YORK, April 17—(P)—The stock market backed and filled all during Tuesday's session and wound up just about where it started.

Prices were mixed at the opening and when the market closed the margin of gains over losses was insignificant. Price changes were fractional for the most part. There was a wave of improvement during the closing minutes but it resulted in no clear cut picture. The statistics told the story graphically. Advances outnumbered declines 414 out of a total of 1,115 issues traded. There were 35 new highs and 34 new lows. Rail and utility categories advanced 10 cents each on the average.

There was little activity, even during the few moments of improving prices late in the session. The volume was 1,440,000 shares, down sharply from Monday's 1,730,000. It was just about the speed the market has shown on many recent days, however. There was a note of caution in the air. Many appeared to be taking the attitude: When uncertain just sit tight.

Decatur Sets

Budget and

$2 Tax Rate

Decatur City Commission Tuesday night adopted a 1951 budget of $948,621.63 and set the ad valorem tax rate at $2 per $100, but only after several citizens protested tax assessment reductions by the Commission for 30 to 40 citizens.

Burke Sasnet and Attorney Schley Howard told the Commission they felt the city's newly adopted tax assessment plan was fair, but they protested Commission's reduction of some assessments.

"If the assessments were fair for most Decatur residents, they should be fair for all," said Howard. "I can't see why the assessments of certain prominent citizens or businesses should be reduced."

Commission members explained that they were by the very nature of the new system some inequalities the first year it was put in application. "But we think these inequalities will be ironed out by next year," said Mayor A. Mel Turner.

The new budget included a $34,000 appropriation for the recreation department which was $3,000 less than total expenses of the recreation department last year and $10,000 less than the recreation board had asked for to operate an expanded program.

In other actions, Commission granted the application of Sam L. Holcomb to build four houses on Bucher Drive with the understanding that there be no septic tanks and that the duplexes be connected to the city sewer system; granted permission to the Oakhurst Baptist Church to erect in addition to its educational building; passed a motion to advertise an ordinance to pave Plainview Ave.; requested the city manager to take up with county officials correction of sewer problems in the Candler Rd. section and approved an application of Bill Chappell of 903 South Candler St. to install septic tanks and drain field.

Transit Co. Report Ordered Of Operations Under Boost

Georgia Public Service Commission Tuesday ordered Atlanta Transit Co. to make a comprehensive report by Nov. 15 on operations under recently boosted fares.

The report is to cover the first six months of operations under new rates. The directive was included in a formal order on the new rates published Tuesday.

Commissioners specifically ordered that "Atlanta Transit Co. shall improve transportation service on the Atlanta Transit System," but did not single out any particular line that should be improved.

Jackson P. Dick, chairman of the board of Atlanta Transit, Tuesday said the company is "going to make every effort to provide the most efficient and economical service possible."

We now have scheduled, and we have had ever since this company bought the transit system, enough vehicles in operation to comfortably accommodate our passengers during both rush and off-peak hours," Dick said.

The present rate is two cents per mile per passenger.

Book Rentals Taxable

All money collected on book rentals is subject to Georgia's three percent sales tax.

A spokesman for the sales tax unit of the State Revenue Department said lending libraries were included in the section of the law taxing lease or rental of tangible personal property.

Capitol Briefs

State Revenue Commissioner Charles D. Redwine announced Tuesday he is going away for a vacation. Gov. Talmadge was forced to miss his scheduled address before the County Commissioners Association in Savannah Tuesday. His office reported he was still confined to the Executive Mansion with a severe cold.

Fatality Halts Muscogee Jumps

COLUMBUS, April 17.—(AP)—Exhibition parachute jumps were banned Tuesday at Muscogee County Airport as a result of the death Sunday of a Fort Benning paratrooper who plummeted 5,000 feet to the ground with an unopened parachute.

Manager O. E. Cabiness said the airport hereafter will allow no exhibition jumps. He said the soldier, Cpl. Muriel Wayne Caddell, 38, had received a permit to jump for the fatal Sunday jump but had first signed a waiver clearing the airport from any responsibility.

Fort Benning officials Tuesday identified Caddell as the son of Earl Caddell, Route One, Stillwell, Kansas.

Fare Hikes Asked

Twelve major bus lines Tuesday asked the State Public Service Commission to increase minimum inter-city rates from 15 cents to 20 cents.

The lines, Class A carriers, also asked for an inter-city rate increase to a level of two and a quarter cents per mile per passenger.

Your Stars Today

SUN IN ARIES

General Tendencies—Some strong waves from the sign Virgo hit the majority of people today, making everyone very practical and precise about small affairs but urging them to overlook some of the big issues which may be at hand. Work dealing with natural materials can benefit on this date—such things as wood, minerals, wool and silk. There is plenty of change and possible travel for today, probably created by business interests. Romance is not strong.

If It's Your Birthday—It may take you some time to get started this year—meaning the year which begins on your birthday—because you have a number of slow-moving details to clear up which will last for about two to three months. After that, you will find that things will hustle for you. Let me advise you to be on the lookout for a promising business connection, something a little different, because you are going to prosper in the months before your next birthday.

Religious Belief Makes Dad Refuse Blood to Dying Baby

CHICAGO, April 17—(UP)—A young father refused on religious grounds Tuesday to let doctors give a blood transfusion to his dying baby.

"It is not God's way," he said. State authorities, acting swiftly in an attempt to save the newborn baby's life, petitioned for appointment of a guardian to take the case out of the parents' hands. "I CAN'T CHANGE"

But the father, Darrell Labrenz, 25, was adamant.

"I can't change, I can't," he said, while fingering a worn Bible at Bethany Hospital where his infant daughter, Cheyri, was born. Labrenz and his wife, Rhoda, 20, are members of the Jehovah's Witnesses sect.

Dr. Herman Bundesen, President of the Board of Health, said the baby was born five days ago and is suffering from a blood condition known as erythroblastosis.

The mother is an RH-negative

LIFE EBBING AWAY

"The baby's life is ebbing away," Bundesen said. "Ordinarily we would have a 95 per cent chance of saving its life. But as each hour passes the chance is flitting away."

The parents refused vital blood transfusions on the grounds that they are contrary to their belief of Bible teachings.

STUDIES TELEVISION

Labrenz, who also has been studying television engineering, said he could not change. Clad in overalls and speaking emotionally, Labrenz said there "is nothing I can do about it."

"If anything happened to my wife or myself, it would be the same," he said. "I could not lift a hand to save Rhoda and she would feel the same way about me."

He said they have an 18-month-old son, Kit, and "the same principle applies to him."

Shipment of Rags For Poles Halted

WASHINGTON, April 17—(AP). The Commerce Department announced Tuesday it has halted at Boston a shipment of five carloads of wool rags destined for Communist Poland.

The goods were detained under a warrant issued by Federal District Judge Francis J. W. Ford because of "probable violations of U. S. export control regulations," the department's Office of International Trade (OIT) said.

The wool rags, valued at about $77,000, were bought in Canada by the Kransnow Wool Stock Co., of Chelsea, Mass., and were shipped in bond through the U. S., the OIT reported.

"The U. S. customs entry form indicated Poland as the final destination," the OIT continued. "Investigation disclosed, however, that the Canadian government had not licensed shipment to Poland, and that Canadian customs officials had cleared the shipment only for consumption in the United States."

This "Plant" grows from your needs

Your needs for oil are manifold—and they vary with the seasons. You want more fuel oil in winter, more gasoline in summer, other products year-round. How to bring greater efficiency to the job of filling your needs, as well as those of industry and our armed forces, is the major study in a new kind of pilot plant—set up by Shell for research into distribution problems.

At 17 such pilot plants Shell develops new distribution techniques for use in its network of 707 local distributing plants. Better service, for you and the nation, is the result.

Making oil more useful:

Oil contributes in hundreds of ways to the nation's economy, comfort, protection. It produces more than half of America's power.

Research in distribution is another example of how the oil industry gets the maximum usefulness out of our petroleum supply.

And oil companies, to do this, work on 3 fronts: production, refining and distribution.

Joined to serve you best

Production finds new oil fields, gets the most possible oil from existing wells.

Refining gets more and better products from every gallon of crude petroleum.

Distribution anticipates the users' needs, and delivers the product where and when it is needed.

At Shell, all three of these operations are meshed into one smooth-working unit by an intricate, sensitive system known as Co-ordinated Distribution.

With production, refining, and distribution all joined "under one roof"—teamed to exchange ideas—Shell does its part to assure the most efficient flow of petroleum products to you.

To strengthen America:

Because they have plowed back over 10 billion dollars into new plants and equipment during the past 5 years, America's privately managed oil companies out-produce the world—are better prepared today than ever before to meet both civilian and military needs.
